

ABSTRACT

A mobile terminal adapted to attract the attention of a person. The terminal receives audio information and, using the mobile terminal, the user is able to select part of the audio information which the terminal then uses when the attention of the user is desired/required.

- 5 The terminal may be a mobile telephone where ringing tones may be defined from audio tracks using the telephone.